SONGS OF PRAISE

*From heaven you came, helpless babe,
Entered our world, your glory veiled;
Not to be served but to serve,
And give your life that we might live*

Hymns Old & New No. 148

Born in 1950, Graham Kendrick, the writer of this hymn, was the son of a Baptist minister. He has been particularly associated with the 'March for Jesus' witness and has written such well-loved hymns and songs as Make way, make way for the King of Kings; Shine Jesus, shine; Meekness and majesty; Restore, O Lord, the honour of your name and All I once held dear (Knowing You).

Kendrick wrote this hymn, 'The Servant King' to give it its proper title, for the Christian arts festival, Greenbelt. As with most of his other hymns, he wrote both the words and music, picking out the tune on his piano at home. This hymn has a wonderful theological sweep and breadth. Beginning with the Incarnation - God becoming human - other verses include Gethsemane 'there in the garden of tears' and Calvary 'the scars that speak of sacrifice'. The hymn points to a central paradox of Christian faith; that Jesus is both king and servant, priest and sacrifice, the one who conquers through love; before challenging the singer to a response, 'so let us learn how to serve, and in our lives enthrone Him'. This is a contemporary hymn which does not 'dumb down' in terms of subtlety or poetry, nor does it suffer from the excessive 'me-centred-ness' of so many worship songs that have been written in recent years.

SURPRISED BY JOY

Those who collect the shoeboxes which are annually filled by members of the parish church and primary school as part of Operation Christmas Child (OCC), warn that "They all have to be checked — you'd never believe what some people put in them!"

Despite warnings to the contrary, some well-meaning people have been known to put in toy guns and knives, chemicals (e.g. nail varnish or medicine) and things that would be dangerous if swallowed by small children (e.g. marbles and pins). Such errors of judgement are far outweighed by the kind and thoughtful generosity shown by the majority of shoebox donors.

There is something wonderfully simple about the idea — fill a small box and send it to an unknown and needy child. The films made by the OCC show clearly that the pleasure taken in choosing what to put in the boxes is as nothing to the joy of those who receive them.

All of which reminds us of the Gift that, for those who can see past the wrappings, is the 'reason for the season': the Christ-child. What on earth did God think He was doing? Had we wanted to change the course of history for good and secure eternity in human hearts, then doing so through a baby born to a poor family, living under occupation in an unimportant part of the world, is not what we would have done.

God has clearly always loved surprises. The account of His dealings with humanity in the Bible is full of them, - but in Jesus Christ, He saved His best until last.

May you, to use the title of the autobiography of C.S. Lewis, be once again Surprised by Joy this Christmas.

Le Havre

Directed by Aki Kaurismaki (2011)

Starring Andre Wilms, Blondin Miguel, Kati Outinen and Jean-Pierre Darroussin.

When an African boy arrives by cargo ship in the port city of Le Havre, an aging shoe shiner takes pity on the child and welcomes him into his home. Le Havre emerges as a beautiful, hopeful and nostalgic portrait of an essentially good community.

Using careful character studies and a thread of black humour, a sense of solidarity builds between, not just the story's characters, but between them, the filmmaker and us.

White Christmas

Directed by Michael Curtiz (1954)

Starring Bing Crosby, Danny Kaye and Rosemary Clooney

Two former World War Two soldiers team up as a song-and-dance act. When a couple of beautiful sisters, who also have a song-and-dance act, travel to a Vermont lodge for a Christmas show, the soldiers follow. They find that the lodge owner is their former commander. Romantic mix-ups ensue as the characters try to help the general with his problems running the lodge.

CHRISTMAS TREE GREETINGS

Are you wanting to cut down your Christmas card list and yet not offend your friends in Dedham? Then you could use the Christmas tree that will be in the parish church to send your greeting. Colourful large bauble decorations will be available for you to write your greeting upon - then hang it on the tree for all to see! The tree will be erected on Thursday 13 December. We ask for a donation to help cover the costs. All additional income will be given to the Macmillan Nurses charity.

REVD. GILL MOORE

The plan was for Gill, who is a curate (an assistant minister) working in the deanery of Harwich, to spend three months on placement in Dedham. This plan happily coincided with the Vicar wanting to take a month away from his public duties so that he could concentrate on his studies, and care for his wife, who was scheduled to have an operation. However, the plan subsequently changed when Gill was appointed by Bishop Christopher as a part-time chaplain at Colchester General Hospital, where she will be joining a newly-formed team there. Her last Sunday with us was therefore at the end of November. We are very grateful for the time which she has spent among us and wish her God's blessing on her future ministry.

CONSTABLE SURGERIES

Clinical Care We are very proud to announce that our practice was rated the highest out of all the practices in Suffolk for the clinical care we provided in 2011-12. In recent years the practice has consistently achieved the maximum score on all the clinical indicators.

Annual 'Flu Vaccinations We had an excellent turnout at our two 'flu clinics. Unfortunately delays in production of the vaccine meant that we had to postpone our East Bergholt clinic until after the Capel clinic. We vaccinated 2,084 patients in two days and raised a staggering £1,097 for the charity EACH. Thank you all.

Volunteers still needed Medical students from UEA and Cambridge have been attending the practice since September for training with our partners and Dr James Sherifi. We are still looking for volunteers with any interesting conditions, both female and male. Transport can be arranged if you have difficulty getting to the surgery.

Christmas Opening Hours The practice will be closed on Christmas Day, Boxing Day and New Year's Day. Calls on these days will be forwarded to the out-of-hours service. The practice will be open as normal all other days but we expect to be very busy. If you require repeat prescriptions over Christmas and New Year please request these well in advance.

CREDIT & DEBIT CARD SCAM

A warning has been issued about a particular type of credit and debit card fraud which is booming. The so-called 'courier' scam has been on the march since the introduction of chip and PIN cards made other types of fraud harder. Experts say that elderly people may be particularly at risk.

The scam starts when you get a phone call from someone who typically claims to be from the security or fraud department of your bank. They say that their records have flagged up a fraudulent transaction on your card. According to the Metropolitan Police, in order to win your trust they may tell you to ring the bank back using the phone number printed on the back of your bank card - but the fraudster has kept the telephone line open, so even though you call the bank, the call does not go through. Instead you are unknowingly connected straight back to the fraudster. The thieves explain that in order to protect your card they'll need to come and collect it by courier.

They will also ask that you either key in your PIN on the phone, or write it down and put it in the envelope with the card. The fraudster then hires a genuine courier to collect the envelope. The courier, who is an unwitting pawn in the scam, then hands over the envelope to the fraudster, who uses the card and PIN to withdraw cash from cash machines. Katy Worobec, Head of Fraud Control, Financial Fraud Action UK said that scammers had particularly been targeting elderly people - although the scam is spreading.

Smartys continues to be open Monday through Friday from 9.30 to 12.30 with a lunch club on Tuesdays and Thursdays until 1pm during term time. It offers an inclusive, stimulating and fun environment for all child aged 2½ to 5 yrs. It acts as a natural feeder for the 'Outstanding' Ofsted rated Dedham Primary School and retains close links with the school.

Why not come and visit Smartys during our Open Morning on Friday 7 December from 10 -12. New and existing parents from all over the local area are most welcome. We still have some spaces available for immediate start on all days. Please contact Becky on 07936 381484 or visit www.smartys.org.uk

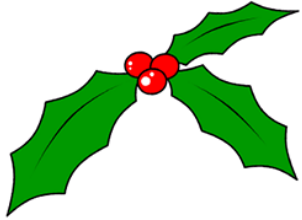

During October the children have been looking at themselves, their families and where they live. They have been on regular outings to the village and enjoyed doing Autumn arts and crafts, attending the School Harvest Festival in the Church and joining in National Baking Week, making and icing buns. To ensure that Smartys remains open and at the heart of the community, two vacancies need to be urgently filled – Chair & Treasurer. For more information on the roles please contact Katherine Montgomery ☎ 321 024.

Sheila Beeton and Sue Vinter write: DEDHAM PARISH COUNCIL, The Parish Council discussed the issue of swearing on the football field. John O'Mara from the Border League Committee attended and reported on actions the League were taking to discourage bad language and behaviour on football fields. Approval was given for grants to support the Dickensian Evening, for funding play equipment repairs, and for the implementation of a new Parish Council website. It was agreed to 'raise the canopy' of the trees on the Drift, and to use the Jubilee Grant funding to replace a dead tree with a commemorative lime tree. A new Parish Clerk has been appointed, after having received two applications following public notice. In an open and fair evaluation Mrs Nicola Baker has been appointed.

We are looking for volunteers in two roles for a Severe Weather Team, to help with clearing main pavements of snow and ice and to make contact with local neighbours who may require assistance such as with essential food purchases. Cllr. Chris Clark, the Council's Emergency Coordinator, is compiling a register of volunteers and of those requiring assistance. Please consider volunteering for this team. For more details and to register your own or your neighbours details (name, address, telephone number) please contact him on ☎ 322 815.

◆ DUCHY BARN COMMUNITY CENTRE The Revd. Ray Gibbs, who had led the project to refurbish the Barn, announced that, after a lot of hard work, imagination and dedication from its management group, it was due to be opened in January - a delay caused by the failure of the gas suppliers to lay a pipe to the Barn in time. He thanked the Trusts and Charities and individuals that had supported the project, among them: The Essex Environmental Trust, the Cory Environmental Trust, the Charles Hayward Foundation, the William Burkitt Charity, Dedham Parish Church, the family and friends of the late John Burfield, and the Dedham Jubilee Committee for their generosity.

A Century Ago December 1912 & January 1913

- ◆ STREET LIGHTING Mr Percy Clover has kindly sent us the Balance Sheet of the Dedham Street Lighting Fund. There is still a deficit due to the Treasurer of £7 19s 1d. There can be no doubt that the lighting of the street during the winter months is of great benefit to us all.
- ◆ CHRISTMAS IN RETROSPECT The decorations for the Christmas Festival were carried out with the taste which we are accustomed to expect from those who kindly give their services... Christmas, this year, will at least be remembered for the wet and dreary character of the weather... great care was taken to keep good fires in the stoves, but that meant the consumption of a lot of coke, and a proportionately heavy bill for the Churchwardens to meet.

WILLIAM HAGGAR

William Hagggar

An illegitimate son of a Dedham housemaid, he became a musician, actor, theatre proprietor, photographer and fairground showman - and a pioneer film-maker. William Hagggar (1851-1925), some of whose films featured in the Dedham Village Film Festival earlier this year, is the subject of a vivid biography by Peter Yorke, his great-grandson.

Born in Dedham, to a housemaid working in service here, Hagggar left the village while still in his teens. Learning to play the cornet, he got a job as musician with a travelling theatre company. In 1871, he married Sarah, an actress. Together they travelled for nearly forty years through England, and South and West Wales "following the coal". By 1891, he and Sarah had eleven children, eight of them surviving to adulthood. Eventually becoming the boss of his own theatre company, he spent £80 on a film projector which was worked by limelight. In April 1898, after several experimental explosions, Hagggar and his sons pushed his first 'Bioscope Exhibition' onto a fairground in Aberavon.

On the first day they took a massive £15, but the enterprise nearly foundered when a six-month pit-strike deprived them of custom. By 1901 they had done well enough to buy a portable steam engine to generate electric light, but now Hagggar faced competition from showmen with other attractions as well as films. The supply of films was drying so Hagggar bought a cine-camera and film stock and began experimenting. As well as taking 'actuality' subjects, he tried his hand at a few 'made-up' films, using the theatrical companies' two actors, its plots and scenery.

In 1902 he hit the jackpot, filming The Maid of Cefn Ydfa, a romantic tragedy based on a novel by Isaac Hughes. Shot in an hour and a half, it lasted just six minutes. It was said that "when Hagggar first put on The Maid, any other show could close down".

During the next three years, Hagggar made The Poachers, a three-minute chase film which sold more than any other film to that time. Hagggar's Life of Charles Peace, combined a drama and a chase, concluding sensationally with Peace's drop from the gallows. In his films Hagggar introduced innovations such as panning shots, camera placing, and cutting to produce more immediate, less stage-bound films, than most of his contemporaries. He also made slapstick comedies, including the Mirthful Mary series, in which an actress of formidable stature and voluminous underwear lays into snowballers, pub drinkers, policemen and magistrates - a form of anti-authoritarian humour that was sure to appeal to his fairground audiences. So well did this fare go down that he acquired three showman's traction engines and two huge ornate organ showfronts brilliant with coloured lights. After Sarah's death in 1909, Hagggar ceased the touring and opened a chain of cinemas. His last years were spent in an honoured retirement, and he died in February 1925. He had said there would be "money in it" - and he was right. He left £16,912 - something like £1.5 million today.

Yorke tells Hagggar's story and relates the rediscovery and recognition of the pioneering quality of William's eight surviving films. Illustrations from the time, interspersed with the text, include portraits of the family in theatrical costume, the showfronts and stills from the films with the titles and synopses of some seventy Hagggar films. There are full indexes. This book will be of interest to all who want to know more about the origins of the British film industry, or a social history that, but for Mr. Yorke's endeavours, might have been forgotten.
